Tornado-Struck City Fights Back

Udall Gets Federal, Red Cross Funds, Help From Its Neighbors

UDALL, Kan., May 27 (AP) — Public and private purses opened generously and strong-muscled strangers worked overtime today to restore life to this tornado-destroyed town.

Victim of the worst storm disaster in Kansas history, Udall was left with only one habitable structure—a small residence. Already 73 dead and more than 200 injured had been counted out of a population of 500. An estimated 50 were missing.

The casualties were part of the 114 killed and more than 700 injured in a series of vicious twisters that ripped through Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Missouri Wednesday night and Thursday. Property damage in the mid-continent area was estimated in the millions.

Funds Are Authorized

President Eisenhower, responding to an appeal from Gov. Fred Hall of Kansas, today authorized the Civil Defense Administration to use whatever funds are necessary to aid the state's stricken.

The Red Cross, establishing a field headquarters at Arkansas City, Kan., for both Kansas and Oklahoma, reported a quick and generous public response to appeals for funds. Contributions were being received by local chapters in the two states.

Workmen from neighboring towns and cities moved in voluntarily to help clear tangled wreckage and set up temporary buildings.

In Blackwell, Okla., where 18 were killed and 500 injured by a tornado that immediately preceded the Udall disaster, most relief work was undertaken by that city's own citizens. It is a much larger community than Udall.

New trouble for Blackwell, however, came today from the flooding Chikaskia River that loops the city north and east. It was in the northeast section that the tornado struck. The stream gaged 24.7 feet today, 2.7 feet above flood stage, and was predicted to rise to between 26 and 27 feet. At 27 feet it would flood about 15 blocks, 10 of them in the disaster area.

170 Homes Destroyed

The full extent of Udall's destruction was measured by Ward Stuber, Winfield, Kan., Red Cross Disaster Committee chairman. He reported 170 homes completely wrecked, 18 so damaged they are not livable and will have to be razed; and only one relatively unscathed. Only three business and public buildings were not leveled and these three are unusable.

Mayor Earl B. Rowe expressed fear more bodies would be found as the debris is cleared. He said an estimated 50 residents have not been accounted for and although some of these may be staying with friends or relatives, he believes some are lying dead beneath the ruins.

Ike Asks More Liberal Laws For Refugees

Requests 10 Changes To Make It Easier To Enter Country

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP) — President Eisenhower asked Congress today to liberalize the 1953 Refugee Relief Act and "reaffirm that the great tradition of sanctuary lives on in America."

He requested 10 changes in the law, which has been criticized frequently as so restrictive as to be self-defeating.

The immediate reaction of some key lawmakers was favorable, but measures to make it easier to admit immigrants to this country have had rough going in Congress in recent years.

Admits 214,000 Refugees

The 1953 act authorized the admission of up to 214,000 refugees and other nonquota immigrants before the end of next year. To date slightly over 30,000 visas have been issued and about 22,000 persons actually have entered the country.

Eisenhower said that administrative steps to speed up the program have been taken but that, nonetheless, "the purposes of the act are not being achieved as swiftly as we had all hoped."

In his special message to Congress, he said experience has demonstrated that "administrative improvements are not enough" and that changes in the act itself must be made if its objectives are to be achieved.

Among his recommendations were the reallocation of unused quotas and authority to let voluntary welfare organizations provide the required job and housing assurances for applicants for admission. Under present law only individual Americans can act as sponsors. Both are controversial.

Both of these proposals could be sources of controversy, since Congress in the past has shown strong opposition to any pooling of immigration quotas or to any "blanket assurances" for immigrants.

The President also asked that some of the key definitions in the act be broadened, that the requirement for passports be dropped, that a two-year history of incoming refugees no longer be demanded, that families not be required to be as a unit, and that persons suffering with tuberculosis be made admissible.

Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), who piloted the 1953 act through the Senate, called the suggestions "sound" and predicted they would be approved by Congress.

He is the top-ranking Republican on the Senate Immigration subcommittee and on another special Refugee subcommittee, both units of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Potter To Reduce Age For Benefits

Referendum Sought On School Bus Issue

ANNAPOLIS, May 27 (AP) — Two Maryland counties have petitioned the secretary of state for a referendum next year on whether their public school buses should also carry parochial or private school students.

The petitions were sent in by residents of Talbot and Harford counties in opposition to bills passed at the 1955 General Assembly which provide for such extension of school bus service.

Harford's petition already has the necessary signatures to get the matter placed on the 1956 general election ballot.

Girl, Run Over By Train, Unhurt

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP) — Sen. Potter (R-Mich) introduced a bill today to reduce from 65 to 60 years the age at which wives and widows may qualify for old age and survivors benefits. His measure also would provide disability benefits under the Social Security law.

Potter's move gave him a jump on House Democratic leaders who had planned to bring up the same general sort of proposal in June.

Potter cited figures indicating that 90 per cent of the widows of workers are in need of old age and survivors benefits.

The bill provides for payment of disability benefits to persons who are covered by the Social Security Act but are disabled before reaching 65.

In the light of hospital and medical costs, "many life savings are spent in a matter of months when the family breadwinner becomes physically disabled," Potter said.

Under present law a retired worker gets a 50 per cent addition to his old age payment if his wife also is 65. If a widow has children she gets benefits as long as they are under 18, then nothing until she is 65.

Two Hungarian Youths Flee Iron Curtain

VIENNA, Austria, May 27 (AP) — After picking their way over the heavily mined Austrian-Hungarian border, two Hungarian teen-agers fleeing communism reached Vienna today. One was injured in the foot when he set off a mine.

A farmer near the Iron Curtain border was startled out of his sleep when the boys knocked on his door and asked for help. He called an ambulance which brought the pair from the Soviet zone to a Vienna hospital.

Van Runs Wild, Kills Seven

Truck Crashes And Burns In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, May 27 (AP) — A big interstate moving van ran five wild blocks through the heart of San Francisco today, killing seven persons and injuring three as it crashed and exploded on the sidewalk near the Hall of Justice.

Its brakes gone, the huge yellow Mayflower truck and trailer roared down the steep side of Nob Hill on Clay Street at an estimated 80-miles-an-hour.

It ran miraculously clear for blocks. All the death and damage came in the final block.

Wrecks 12 Automobiles

It scraped a half block of store fronts and wrecked a dozen automobiles. At least eight, including three police cars, were smashed into junk. Street signs, lights and poles toppled in crazy confusion.

Pedestrians along the sidewalk scattered like startled quail, but some could not escape in time.

The unlucky were crushed beneath the wreckage and splashed with flaming gasoline from the shattering explosion of the truck's fuel tank.

Flames shot an estimated 50 feet high. Shattered windows showed the entire area.

One man's body burned on the sidewalk as rescuers tried to edge near.

One of the dead was the van driver, identified as William Russell McCandless, Davenport, Ia.

Another was police patrolman Henry Edder.

Two San Francisco women suffered broken legs and a third a possible broken back.

The co-driver, Wayne D. Wolfe of Littleton, Colo., saved himself by leaping from the cab in the second block. He said the big rig's brakes failed just after it started down hill on the narrow one-way street.

Brakes Are Gone

McCandless said, "My brakes—they're gone! Do something!" Wolfe related between sobs.

But Wolfe was used to a different type of truck. He had come from Seattle and volunteered to help his friend deliver a load of furniture. He could not find the emergency brake immediately. He said the driver pulled a handbrake but it operated only the trailer's.

The tractor part of the rig rolled free, with the trailer lashing behind like the tail of a dragon.

"That would be between Jones and Taylor Streets," said Wolfe. In the next block he (McCandless) hollered, "Jump! I opened the door and jumped. We were going fast enough then that when I landed on my feet I bounced up on top of a car. I watched the truck run 2½ blocks more. Then it went out of sight.

Youngster Gets Two Polio Shots

MINNEAPOLIS, May 27 (AP) — I got two polio shots at school," Danny announced to his mother.

"Oh, you didn't either," Mrs. Stordahl of suburban St. Louis Park told her 7-year-old son.

"But mommy," Danny insisted, "don't you know we need two shots?"

Mrs. Stordahl began to get a bit uneasy and called one of the doctors who had been at the school to give the Salk vaccine shots.

Danny's report proved to be correct. The lad, aware of the fact a follow-up shot of vaccine is necessary, had gone through one line at school, received his inoculation, then slipped into a second line for a second shot from another doctor.

The informant said Tito took his first opportunity today to reply to Khrushchev's arrival speech of yesterday. Tito was quoted as telling the Moscow delegates he had agreed to their coming to Belgrade on the understanding that the talks would be purely governmental.

But, the informed source said, Khrushchev responded to Tito in about the same vein as his speech of yesterday when Tito listened without expression to Khrushchev's appeal to return to the Moscow fold.

Tito, a Croatian peasant's son with a long record of Communist activity, was trained in the same tough school as his Soviet visitors. He presumably saw in yesterday's speech an effort to lure him back into the Cominform, something he has declared he would never do.

Girl Scouts Earn $17,000 Baby Sitting, Baking Cakes

MIDLAND, Tex., May 27 (AP)—"thought we would make it," said Janice Hill.

The girls decided three years ago they'd save up for a trip to Europe. They opened an account with a $10 deposit on May 19, 1952.

From that day on, the 14 girls took every chore they could to fatten the account. Individually, they chipped in baby sitting fees and commissions from magazine sales. Collectively, they staged spaghetti suppers, catered at dinners, sold soda pop, handled target ejectors at regional skeet meets, wove Christmas wreaths, and baked cakes.

"We had made up our minds, it was Europe or bust," said Miss Hill.

The girls were sophomores in Midland High School when they started saving pennies. They'll graduate next Monday and leave for New York a week later.

Court Rules Lias Owes $2,000,000 In Federal Taxes

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP)—William G. "Big Bill" Lias, 400-pound racing, W. Va., race track operator, owes more than two million dollars in back income taxes and penalties, a U. S. tax court judge held today.

Judge Clarence P. LeMire fixed $2,012,222 as the amount of taxes and penalties the one-time professional gambler and bootlegger owes for 1942 through 1948. He is liable also, under the ruling, for certain interest charges.

Lias' attorney, Charles J. Martiotti, said in Pittsburgh that the decision is "unfair" and will be fought through the courts. He added:

"The decision was rendered by an agency of the federal government and generally an agency of that kind favors its employer."

"They took the net income of the entire Lias family and put it all in one and charged it to Lias himself. This is definitely wrong."

Lias, who had no comment on the judge's findings, contended through the lengthy hearing in 1952 and 1953 that he didn't owe a dime. State Has Six New Cases Of Polio In Week

BALTIMORE, May 27 (AP)—Maryland has had six new cases of paralytic polio in the past seven days, the State Department of Health reported today, but only one of them involves a youngster who received a shot of the Salk polio vaccine.

Specialists in the department's bureau of preventive medicine, it is believed, to speculate about the sudden increase of cases between May 19 and May 26.

So far, they said, they have been able to detect no connection between incidence of the disease and the inoculation program in which more than 100,000 first and second graders in Maryland schools received their first Salk shots in late April and early May.

The vaccinations were interrupted before the first shots were completed. The U. S. Public Health Service recommended they be stopped while it checked and instituted new procedures for making sure the vaccine is safe.

There still was no indication today when the inoculations might be resumed.

The six-year-old Rockville boy who was stricken Monday was the first reported case involving a youngster who had received a vaccine shot.

Dr. Harold Peebles, Montgomery County health officer, said he had a "comparatively light" attack of the deadly bulbar type of polio.

Peebles said it was possible the Salk vaccine, given to him at school on May 3, had minimized the attack.

Specialists at the Health Department attached significance to the fact the boy was not paralyzed in the arm where he received the injection.

Eleven cases of paralytic polio—nine in the counties and two in Baltimore—now have been reported thus far in 1955.

At the same juncture of 1954 there had been only four cases, three in the counties and one in Baltimore.

Only three cases had been reported this year up until mid-April, about the time the vaccination program started. Two more cases developed between then and May 19.

10 Firms Cited For Failure To Obey Lobby Laws

UPPER MARLBORO, May 27 (AP)—A Washington reporter was cited today for contempt of court because of a story he wrote.

The contempt citation, issued by Judge Charles C. Marbury of Prince Georges County Circuit Court, was based on a May 13 story by Francis Porter in the Washington Daily News.

The story discussed a charge of assault with intent to rape then pending against Barrington L. Cooke, a 20-year-old Washington Negro. It said Marbury and Judge John R. Felcher were at first unaware the charge carried with it a possible capital punishment sentence, but upon rechecking found it did.

Marbury held this statement to be false and "a clear and present danger to the administration of justice in this court."

Court Rules Lias Owes $2,000,000 In Federal Taxes

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP)—William G. "Big Bill" Lias, 400-pound Wheeling, W. Va., race track operator, owes more than two million dollars in back income taxes and penalties, a U. S. tax court judge held today.

Judge Clarence P. LeMire fixed $2,012,222 as the amount of taxes and penalties the one-time professional gambler and bootlegger owes for 1942 through 1948. He is liable also, under the ruling, for certain interest charges.

Lias' attorney, Charles J. Marotti, said in Pittsburgh that the decision is "unfair" and will be fought through the courts. He added:

"The decision was rendered by an agency of the federal government and generally an agency of that kind favors its employer."

"They took the net income of the entire Lias family and put it all in one and charged it to Lias himself. This is definitely wrong."

Lias, who had no comment on the judge's findings, contended through the lengthy hearing in 1952 and 1953 that he didn't owe a dime. But, he said, in order to shorten the proceedings and save additional expense he would be willing to settle the case for $1,600,000. The government turned him down. Later he offered $1,200,000. This was turned down, too.

He explained the second offer was smaller because the government meantime had placed his properties, including Wheeling Downs race track, in receivership. As a result, he said, he wasn't in as good a borrowing position.

LeMire's 75-page opinion upheld all of Internal Revenue's contentions.

In addition, the judge severely criticized Lias. He said Lias "has continuously engaged in illicit enterprises" during the years in question and earlier, and after observing him as a witness for several days he concluded "he was evasive, contradictory, and unresponsive." LeMire said Lias' history is one of "wanton disrespect for observance of the law" and that the court was "not disposed to give any credibility to his unsupported testimony."

Lias was tried previously on a criminal charge of income tax evasion for the years 1942 through 1946 and a jury found him innocent. LeMire noted this but said the Supreme Court has held that such acquittal "was no bar to a collection of the 50 per cent addition to the tax for fraud."

This was the second decision to go against Lias this year. On Jan. 27 LeMire upheld a tax claim of $132,725 against the Automatic Cigarette Sales Corp., which was headed by Lias.

The government also is seeking to deport Lias.

Mother To Get Her Son's DSC

FT. MEADE, Md., May 27 (AP)—The Distinguished Service Cross awarded posthumously to Cpl. William L. Meckley of Hanover, Pa., for heroism in Korea, will be presented to his mother at Second Army Headquarters here Saturday.

Lt. Col. Edward N. Hethaway, an officer in Meckley's unit at the time, will give the nation's second highest military decoration to Mrs. Ruth M. Miller of Hanover.

Lt. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, commanding general of the Second Army, also will participate in the ceremony.

Cpl. Meckley was cited for extraordinary heroism in action in 1950 when he rescued three wounded members of his squad. He was wounded three times himself but despite this volunteered to act as rear guard while his comrades sought to withdraw from a position where they had been ambushed by Chinese Communists.

Meckley was wounded a fourth time making his stand and died. At the time he was assigned to Company B of the 15th Infantry Regiment of the 3rd Division and his unit was trying to help a South Korean marine battalion which had been cut off by North Korean guerrillas.

NOLY BIBLE

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Court Rules Against SRC In Deep Creek Lake Dispute

OAKLAND—Chief Judge George Henderson has overruled a demurrer filed by the State Roads Commission against an injunction which a group of Deep Creek Lake property owners filed in an attempt to keep the commission from moving onto a certain strip of land.

The defendants are now required to file their answer on or before June 15.

The demurrer declared that the bill of complaint of the property owners was not sufficient in law to give them the right to stop the State Roads Commission from going ahead with the widening and improvement of U. S. Route 219, along the lake front.

The injunction was filed after the property owners were informed that the commission did not intend to carry on any further negotiations with them with respect to either the purchase or condemnation of the land in question, since an amended plat had been prepared which purported to show that the State Roads Commission and not the complainants were owners of the land.

The strip of land in question is 20 feet in width and approximately 700 feet in length. The filing and recording of the plat indicated it was not intended to show that the same was for a roadway and that it never came into existence as such.

Judge Henderson, in his opinion, said that an intent on the part of the owner to dedicate it to public use was absolutely essential to constitute a dedication and that the language from the Bill of Complaint expressly "negatives any such intent."

Keep On Living-- Even If You Drive

So you plan to take to the highways this weekend! Are you planning to come back? Alive? The Association of Casualty and Surety Companies fears 425 Americans who drive off for the long weekend will not come back. Those week-enders will be among the statistics representing the price in lives the nation will pay on the highways this weekend, as it has in the past for such vacations from the everyday grind.

Every year safety officials ponder over highway deaths, fixing the causes of such tolls, hoping that what they see will enable them to save other lives in the future. From their studies they try to gather some lessons which will teach people how to avoid being among those who don't come back from some carefree outing. How many lives they save in this way is never known.

But they know there must be many who heed their words. So they continue the endless task of trying to teach Americans how to go out on the highways and come back unharmed.

This year we again have their advice to motorists. Read it and live! There are only six points:

1. Start trips in the morning, after a good night's rest—not in the evening, after a hard day's work.

2. Stop for coffee or other alertness beverage every 100 miles, and bring along a thermos full for restaurant-scarce turnpike driving.

3. During night-time coffee stops, be sure to switch your lights back on before swinging back on to the highway.

4. Always stay 100 feet behind the car ahead. As one safety official remarked: "Bumper-riding is a wonderful way to get bumped off."

5. Don't wear colored glasses at night. They reduce headlight glare, but they reduce vision too.

6. Don't forget the Golden Rule when you get behind the wheel. Give the other fellow the right of way.

The Reason For Existence

LONDON—Analyzed objectively, there is no logical historic reason why Great Britain should be a first-class power in this 20th Century of huge mass nations and emphasis upon raw materials. The fact is that the British are a first-class power and one feels it here atmospherically more than one does American power in Washington and New York. Maybe it is the pageantry of royalty; maybe it is the pride of race. But it is here.

These islands are overcrowded with 50,000,000 people as they must be overcrowded with anything over 15,000,000, which is the most they can feed out of their own resources. Of course, Japan is in the same condition and hoped to find the solution to its problem in an attempt to take over parts of the mainland of Asia, notably Manchuria. But the era of imperialism and colonialism is over for all countries except Soviet Russia, which apparently enjoys an exceptionalism. The British have been forced to give up their best colonial areas and the commonwealth is no substitute, from an economic standpoint, surely for the good old days of imperial exploitation which from Elizabeth I to George V made England strong and rich.

The problem here then is to maintain a first-class power on inadequate resources and excessive population. Analyzed logically it would seem to be an impossible task. But the fact is that R. A. Butler, the chancellor of the exchequer, has managed to do it within very narrow margins. The British are functioning again as the world's middleman and are building an economy out of it that contains many factors of soundness.

If they are nervous about the future it is because their margins are so narrow. They cannot, for instance, take another war. They would collapse completely if hydrogen bombs did not wipe them out. And it would not take many hydrogen bombs to do that. It is the realistic fear of war that dominates British policy and naturally gives an advantage to any country that wants war.

The British would like to lessen their economic dependence upon the United States by building strong markets in the undeveloped countries of Asia, Africa and South America. There they anticipate that they will not only encounter American but in time German and Japanese competition. It is this which keeps their standard of living on its present level and which holds the dangers of inflationary prices ever before them.

Were it not that they have to import so much food and raw materials, they could enter upon a spree of replacing old houses by new; giving up their bicycles for automobiles; putting electrical refrigeration, television sets and radios in 12,000,000 homes. Actually, they keep home consumption of what they still call luxury articles down because they fear to upset their economy so that they will be able to import less food and raw materials. Maybe some day a wizard will show them how to do both but that wizard has not yet appeared.

On the continent of Europe and in the United States British imports do suffer considerable resistance. The goods they can send out are always manufactured and therefore can be made by their customers. As economic nationalism increases such goods are made by their customers.

The British have nothing to send to the United States which we do not make. They can only hope that the "Buy America" policy will not hamper to the degree of cutting off the American trade, but they know that excessive British exports to the United States could result in political difficulties not only for them but for the administration in Washington. Both business men and government officials speak of this.

Their problems in international politics are conditioned by the narrow margins of their economy. They recognize that vast changes are taking place in the world, that a Soviet Universal State of 800,000,000 people is aimed against them, can overwhelm them. They recognize that China's emergence is a peril and that Nehru's India creates difficulties. But their hope is that they will survive as the middleman and that in that position they can have both economic and political health. It is almost as though they were to return to pre-Victorian England.

Vote In Marginal Districts Is Important In Britain

By David Lawrence

LONDON—To examine the election results in the 630 districts of the British Parliament is not unlike the task that faces the American observer on the morning after a congressional election. What do millions and millions of voters have in common and what was the dominating thought behind their action at the polls? Can a trend be discerned, and what does it mean for other countries?

The size of a majority in the popular vote nationally doesn't mean anything because each district is a unit, and it isn't important even in America how big a majority a Democrat gets in the south, where there is only one candidate running.

The percentage of vote across the nation obtained by either party has none of the significance here that it has when presidential candidates are voted for in America. What is of great importance is the size of the majority in the so-called marginal districts, of which there are about 90. Here the margin of victory in the past for either party has been very narrow, and a switch of a few votes can turn one party out and put the other party in.

What is of great importance is the size of the majority in the so-called marginal districts, of which there are about 90. Here the margin of victory in the past for either party has been very narrow, and a switch of a few votes can turn one party out and put the other party in.

Select Prime Minister

Results from these marginal districts will be studied for weeks hereafter, but the over-all impact of the election outcome is related solely to the victory of a single party as a whole. For here the party members in the House of Commons select the prime minister who combines both legislative and executive functions and can be turned out of office at any time if the national legislature wills it that way.

When 29 million or more persons go to the polls anywhere in the world of democracy, it is astonishing how strikingly their behavior fits the pattern of the times and the precedents of the past. Two controlling influences usually determine the outcome—the presence of economic contentment or discontent on the one hand, and, on the other, some strong emotional feeling that can and sometimes does override any economic issue.

The hen clucked morosely and looked under its wing for corroboration. "Come down and play," suggested the fox holding its slaver down to minimum requirements.

"Not on your chinny-chin-chin," replied the hen-bird who knew which side it fried best on. "I'm not going to furnish both the meal and the quill to pick your teeth with."

"That's malarkey," pleaded the fox, "haven't you dialed the latest channel? All us animals are as peaceful as card tricks. Everyboddy signed an armistice on the back of an elephant's ear. Come down for a romp in the clover."

Just then the baying of the Upper Congo for pack short-waved the kiddies' hour. The fox's ears went up on jerked wires.

"I'm off," it announced, "I don't like commercials." And it got ready to break all records from a standing start.

"But you just told me about the peace conference," said the hen, "why tear yourself off like a suicidal artichoke? Isn't peace on earth, and goodwill to all on the books?"

"I'm leaving," said the fox as it shifted its will-power into hind leg traction, "there's always some sucker who hasn't heard the news."

not going to furnish both the meal and the quill to pick your teeth with."

"That's malarkey," pleaded the fox, "haven't you dialed the latest channel? All us animals are as peaceful as card tricks. Everyboddy signed an armistice on the back of an elephant's ear. Come down for a romp in the clover."

Just then the baying of the Upper Congo for pack short-waved the kiddies' hour. The fox's ears went up on jerked wires.

"I'm off," it announced, "I don't like commercials." And it got ready to break all records from a standing start.

"But you just told me about the peace conference," said the hen, "why tear yourself off like a suicidal artichoke? Isn't peace on earth, and goodwill to all on the books?"

"I'm leaving," said the fox as it shifted its will-power into hind leg traction, "there's always some sucker who hasn't heard the news."

No Magic Formula Attaches To Practice Of Medicine

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Will there ever be a universal remedy that will ease all pain, destroy all disease, and allow us to continue life on this earth until we reach the age of Methuselah? I doubt it because many diseases have numerous causes, including the various types of cancer.

There is no magic, as we understand the meaning of the word, attached to the practice of medicine. Pare's statement, made approximately 450 years ago, "I dress the wounds and God heals them," is true to this day. The physician does not effect cure; all he can do is to seek ways and means of assistating.

But many people still believe in the impossible—even though they know promises of this kind cannot be fulfilled. Hundreds of millions of dollars are expended annually for bottles and boxes of patent medicines designed to relieve all human ailments. Those who perpetuate this nonsense gain financially by selling their products or attracting attention.

Every generation comes up with someone who convinces others he is endowed with healing powers. One of the most colorful was Coue, a mild mannered Frenchman, who conceived the idea that people could wish away disease. His method in essence was a sort of self-hypnotism, in which the subject repeated to himself several times a day the formula, "Day by day, in every way, my rheumatism is getting better and better."

When Coue came to America hundreds of thousands bought his book, paid to hear his lecture, and went away believing. Coueism was based on a germ of truth but did not last. The Frenchman was acquainted with hypnotism and reasoned that through repeated suggestion the sufferer could hypnotize himself into recovery.

Other miracle men have capitalized on the psychology of hope. They promise a sense of well being, vigor, or good health. In other words, they accentuate the positive (happiness) instead of the negative (despair). These men and women do good but fall somewhere along the line, usually because they convince themselves they possess a cure-all and expand into

Try And Stop Me!

By Bennett Cerf

In an elevator in the MGM administration building, Groucho Marx found himself standing next to a lady with a wide-brim hat. "Who do you think you are?" asked Groucho. "Greta Garbo?" The lady nodded. It was the great G.

Later a news commentator predicated that current negotiations over Germany and Austria would end in a stalemate. Groucho spoke up sharply. "I'll ask you," he said, "to keep my wife out of this conversation."

A roaming atheist found himself in the Fiji Islands one Sunday morning where he saw many natives going to church with Bibles in their hands. "Morons!" he ex-claimed to them, "don't you know the Bible is worthless and Christ a creation of the imagination?"

"If that is so," answered an aged

Congressman Barden Blockade Of Bill To Raise Minimum Wage "Unblocked"

WASHINGTON—On May 23, this column reported that a revolt was brewing inside the House Education and Labor Committee against courtly, crusty committee Chairman Graham Barden of North Carolina for his delay in the school-construction bill and for sabotaging the minimum-wage bill.

On May 24, when that committee met, Chairman Barden looked plenty peeved. He did not, however, say anything. Other congressmen who had opposed Barden, however, did.

"My name has been mentioned as the source of the Drew Pearson article stating that the chairman was forestalling action on these two bills," said young Congressman Lee Metcalf of Montana. "Let me assure the committee that I wasn't responsible for the article."

"Well, it wasn't me," insisted veteran Cleveland Bailey of West Virginia.

"Me neither," chorused Minnesota's Roy Wier and several others.

However, the rebellion reported in the column in question continued, and before the secret meeting ended, Barden did an about-face. He agreed: 1, to release the vital school-construction bill for House action; and 2, to begin hearings "as expeditiously as possible" on legislation lifting the minimum wage for labor to 90 cents an hour.

Metcalf refused to talk to the Merry-Go-Round later lest he be placed in double jeopardy. However, it can be reported that he again led the fight against Barden's filibuster, with the help of Congressmen Carl Perkins of Kentucky, Carl Elliott of Alabama, James Roosevelt of California, Bailey, and Wier. Realizing that his opposition was now out in the open, Barden retreated.

Sen. George Roars

The staid and dignified New York Times carried quite a jazz story the other day under the headline: "George thunders and Senate bows— as control in road bill stirs Georgian's ire."

The story went on to state: "Adorned in all his wrath and majesty, Senator Walter George demonstrated today how to bend the U. S. Senate to his wishes . . . The 77-year-old Georgian, patriarch of the Senate, cowed three younger colleagues to the posture of submissive schoolboys . . . From the summit of his years, he manages to look down on his colleagues."

The Times explained that George had then knocked a provision from the federal highway bill which would have let the federal government control advertising rights along the proposed highways.

What this colorful and otherwise accurate news account failed to report, however, was why the "Olympian" senator from Georgia was wrathful, and also that his was an empty victory. The senators had already decided to kill the provision he wanted killed.

The reason Senator George shook an indignant finger and let loose his stentorian oratory was very simple. Coca-Cola was involved.

The "drink that refreshes" has supported George in every campaign, and the senator is loyal to his friends.

Furthermore, Bill Robinson, former manager of the New York Herald Tribune and an intimate golfing partner, is now head of Coca-Cola. And it's thanks in part to this liaison that Senator George has become so close to Ike, was the President's guest at Augusta.

Coca-Cola, which is probably the biggest billboard advertiser in the United States, just did not like the idea of any federal controls over billboards along the proposed new federal highways. So its friend, George of Georgia, leaped into Senate battle.

However, what neither Senator George nor Coca-Cola knew was that this portion of the bill was going to be dropped anyway. Senators Gore of Tennessee and Lyndon Johnson of Texas had already agreed to this on Monday morning. They had also agreed that the provision was to be voted out on Wednesday. Senator George, however, hadn't been told.

So when George came roaring on to the Senate floor Monday afternoon, all he did was fight a battle that had already been won.

NOTE—The advertising provision had been inserted in the highway bill at the behest of hard-pressed Southern states which might lack the money to buy rights of way along highways. In this case the federal government would put up the money for them, but retain advertising rights on each side of the road until the state debt was paid.

TV Probe

Senator Magnuson of Washington is a handsome, amiable gentleman, but he has an unamiable surprise up his sleeve for the big TV-radio networks.

In charge of a Senate committee to investigate the radio-TV industry, Magnuson has been courted and ogled, lobbied and pressured by the big networks. At first they didn't want any investigation at all. Later they decided they wanted a quick investigation, knowing that a superficial probe before Senate investigators have time to dig deeply would unearth few skeletons.

However, Magnuson is planning to spend a considerable period of time in advance preparation, may not begin his probe until fall. He has hired one of the best counsels in Washington, Sidney Davis, and the basic fact he's interested in is letting the American people see to what extent their news, ideas, and thinking are influenced by two big networks.

Meeting At The Summit

Nine To Start In Preakness Today, Nashua Is 4-5 Favorite

Saratoga 5-1,
Traffic Judge
Third At 6-1

Arcaro, Shuk, Guerin
To Ride Top Choices;
Race Starts 5:45 EDT

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE, May 27 (P)—There is too, a race horse named Sticks.

He's at Pimlico, ready to challenge the famed Nashua and severother three-year-olds tomorrow in the $100,000 added Preakness.

A lot of Pimlico railbirds didn't believe it. They swarmed around his barn at old Hilltop today. They peered. They shook their heads over the surprise entry owned by

Frank A. Benner and Norman C.

Galbraith of Chicago.

Around the corner, four grooms provided the only championship for Belair Stud's Nashua, who has his own special mineral water to drink and probably will leave the starting gate tomorrow at 5:45 p.m.

(EDT) a 4-5 favorite.

Sticks has an insignificant background. He traveled the hard way to get to Pimlico in the middle of the night—by air and by truck over a large segment of the United States.

The wonder of it all might make a script for movie executive Harry

M. Warner.

Warner Owns "Honey"

Warner is on hand with his own

Preakness entry, Honeys Alibi. Inidentally, "Honey" is somewhat in the Cinderella class too, what with young Carlos Gonzales up on his first Preakness entry.

Honeys Alibi is the only California horse in the mile and three-sixteenths race.

Sticks became the sixth of the nine Preakness entries in the same barn. He joined Nashua, Honeys

Alibi, Clifford Moore's Traffic

Judge, Roslyn Farm's Go Lightly

and Everglades Farm's Nance's

Lad.

Off by themselves in three other barns were G. Cohen's Chuck

Thompson, Montpelier's Saratoga

and Duntreath Farm's Fletch Path.

The odds makers had Nashua figured a 4-5, while Saratoga was put in second position 5-1 and Traffic Judge 6-1.

Eddie Arcaro will be up on

Nashua. Nick Shuk will pilot Saratoga and Eric Guerin will be on

Traffic Judge.

Sticks has everyone's attention in the "big" barn. Trainers, helpers and anyone else who could crowd around listened with disbelief at the story of Trainer John

too. He is only 28 years old and has been training horses for nine years. Probably never again will he have an experience like this one.

Won 4th Place Money

Sticks hasn't even been able to run third in six races this year and has won only $590 in fourth place money. He is a 30-1 shot tomorrow.

The nine contenders are scheduled to leave the gate with the television cameras of CBS on them, as well as a radio description on the same network.

Carter-Smith Bout
Reset For June 29

BOSTON, May 27 (P)—Promoter Sam Silverman announced tonight the postponed 15 round lightweight title fight between champion Jimmy Carter and challenger Wallace (Bud) Smith has been rescheduled for June 29 at Boston Garden.

The bout, a nationally televised Wednesday night feature with New England blacked out, originally was scheduled for June 1. But Carter came up with a sore throat and his manager, Willie Ketchum, announced the postponement because Carter was weakened by the ill-ness.

The June 1 date on television will feature Willie Pep and Joey Cam of East Boston substituting in a 10-round at the Boston Arena.

Bob Nuxhall, who won his first two decisions pitching for Sunbury, Pa., in the Class B Piedmont League, is a brother of Cincinnati pitching ace Joe Nuxhall.

VARIABLE VALUES

ALMOST the first thing that players must learn about bridge is that one high card is in no sense equivalent to another of the same rank. Most particularly, the queen of a suit bid by partner is obviously better than a different queen, and the same process of promotion or demotion must be applied right down the line.

The opening lead had no bearing whatever—South had a lay-down for 13 tricks.

South "got there first." He said to North: "Why didn't you give me a raise? After all, you had both of my queens."

North was aghast. "What! Are you trying to tell me that I should try for a slam, with only two queens in my hand?"

South said: "Yes, I am."

And South was right. North indeed should have signified his fit for both of South's suits by bidding five spades. Consider: South himself had taken some risk, and North, holding the key queens, should have known that South was taking it. There was no need for South to jump on the second round—three spades would have been enough since North was obliged to hold the auction open, and therefore the very fact that South did jump was proof that he had an extraordinary two-suiter and was seeking only a fit in one suit or the other.

Rec Board Seeks Talk With Council

The City Recreation Board will seek a meeting with the Mayor and Council in regard to the $150,000 recreation bond issue.

The board met Thursday night in City Hall and voted to meet with the council and discuss the use of the money.

The board turned down a request from a women's softball team for bats, balls and umpires. It was pointed out the members of that team are over 18 years of age, and therefore do not come in the age category. However, the board agreed to have the recreation department give the team umpire service at the regular charge to them of $1 a game.

The age category also came up in connection with the tennis instruction program. It was decided that during the teaching periods racquets, balls and the instructors will be furnished free by the recreation department for the 12 to 18 year age group.

Adults will have to pay $1 for the 12 instruction periods, but will have racquets and balls for their use during these classes.

Crushed Stone Bids Received

Two bids were received yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners on 8,000 tons of crushed stone for the Roads Department.

The commissioners turned the bids over to J. Walker Chapman, roads supervisor, and Gorman E. Getty, board attorney, to tabulate. A decision on the contract will be made next week.

The bidders were the Cumberland Cement and Supply Company and the Hampshire Building Supply Company, Romney.

Plans were made by the commissioners to meet next Tuesday afternoon on the county farm property to inspect a sewer line built through the property by the city in furnishing sewage facilities to residents of Holland Street extended.

The city and county entered into an agreement on the sewage project with the city assuming responsibility for replacing fences, land and other items affected by the sewer line. City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum will represent the city at the inspection.

Rec Board Seeks Talk With Council

The City Recreation Board will seek a meeting with the Mayor and 15-cent children's admission price at Constitution Park Pool to include youths 18 years of age. Previously the 15-cent rate was for children up to and including 12 years of age.

Season tickets will again be available for the pool, which will open today.

The board also approved the hiring of Robert Young as assistant general playground supervisor for the season at a rate of $200 a month. However, the board agreed to have the recreation department give the team umpire service at the regular charge to them of $1 a game.

The age category also came up in connection with the tennis instruction program. It was decided that during the teaching periods racquets, balls and the instructors will be furnished free by the recreation department for the 12 to 18 year age group.

Section Is Lashed By Rain, Lightning

Traffic Is Snarled As Subways Flood

Some two inches of rain was dumped into Cumberland and immediate vicinity in two hours late yesterday evening as a fierce thunder and lightning storm poured down rain and hail lashed by high winds.

Cable television service was curtailed for about 45 minutes and electric power was interrupted in sections of the city as lightning struck.

An ornamental cupola pole atop the Baltimore and Ohio Bolt and Forge storeroom building was hit by a bolt of lightning which knocked a hole in the roof, causing a blaze.

The roof is approximately 50 feet high and the aerial ladder of Central Fire Station was used to get to the blaze. East Side responded and later called for the aerial ladder. The blaze occurred about the time the downpour of rain was at its worst.

Lightning hit at least two other places in Cumberland, both on Virginia Avenue.

Bolt Hits Home

Dr. G. Overton Himmelwright, 133 Virginia Avenue said considerable damage to the slate roof of his three-story brick home was caused by a bolt of lightning which hit the height of the storm.

He was in his office at the time and he said a flash came into the office. A number of patients were at his place but no one was injured. Electric power was not affected in the accident, he said.

A freak accident occurred in the rear of 219 Virginia Avenue, where South End Cleaners is located, when a bolt of lightning sliced up a concrete block wall, which fell into the lot.

The wall was about five feet high and approximately 45 feet long. The lightning was reported to have slashed the wall "clean as a whistle," near the ground.

All three subways in the city were flooded by the heavy downpour and at most places in the city the water was running "curb to curb."

Crews of the Potomac Edison were working late last night as power was curtailed in sections of the city.

Stalls In Subway

At least one car stalled in one of the subways and local firemen who received a call, which apparently was a false alarm, were unable to get to Humboldt Street through the South End subway. A call for aid was sent to volunteer firemen at Wiley Ford and Ridgeley by local firemen.

Cable television service was interrupted for about 45 minutes as a result of the severe electrical storm.

The Potomac Valley Television said service was cut off when lightning knocked out a main amplifier off Williams Road.

The company said service was restored about 8:42 p.m., about 45 minutes after the bolt of lightning hit, adding that repair crews were delayed by traffic snarls and by limbs of trees blown into the road by high winds.

The city police desk sergeant was kept busy with calls coming in from all parts of the city. Some of the complaints included:

A car stalled on Hill Top Drive and Montgomery Avenue; a tree blowing down across the street at 314 Broadway, knocking out electric wires of that section; the three subways reported flooded; bad sewers in the 700 block of Maryland Avenue, and manhole lids off along Fayette Street.

Many cellars were flooded by the heavy rain which was dumped into the city.

Crawls From Car

Rev. Joseph P. Sheesley, 26 East Maryland Street, was trapped for a few minutes when he drove his car into the flooded Virginia Avenue Sub way in the blinding downpour.

"It was raining so hard I didn't realize there was water in the sub way," he said. The rain had come so fast there had been no time to barricade the flooded area.

Rev. Sheesley said he stopped before the car plunged deeply into the water, which was up to the handrails of the sidewalk. He tried to back out, but skidded and eventually stalled.

The minister finally escaped by crawling out onto the roof of his car and then to the walk. The car had to be towed out.

Rev. Sheesley, who is pastor of Bethel Evangelical United Brethren Church, said the only apparent damage was to rain-soaked clothing in the car.

Two Inches Of Rain

Similar heavy rain fell in the immediate area as the storm hit. It began here about 7:15 p.m. and lasted until after 8 p.m.

The two inches of rain which fell from 6:30 p.m. through 8:30 p.m. yesterday brought the month's total number of inches to 3.19, which is .21 inches short of normal for the month.

The official high temperature yesterday was 85 degrees with an official low of 49 degrees. At 9 p.m. the temperature was 67 degrees and humidity was 55 per cent at 8 p.m.

The forecast for the first day of the three-day holiday weekend is partly cloudy, warm and more humid with scattered thunderstorms developing in the mountains and drifting eastward to the coast by late this evening.

The defendant moved for a summary judgment on grounds that the plaintiff's cause of action accrued on or about November 19, 1946, which was more than three years before the suit was filed. The suit was docketed last December.

Judge Henderson observed in his opinion that there is no allegation that the defective condition of the lumber was known to the seller at the time of sale or even that it could have been discovered by the usual inspection methods. He added that this was an instance where one of two parties must suffer although neither has been guilty of negligence or fraud.

As Storm Struck

Cars plow through hub-deep water on Williams Street at Maryland Avenue as a sudden thunderstorm dumped two inches of water on the city in two hours early last night. Picture, taken facing up Williams Street hill, shows debris which washed down from the hillside when the storm hit. At least three places in Cumberland were hit by lightning, and all underpasses in the city were flooded by the sudden rain. There was no major damage, however, and there were no injuries.

Sports Cars Arrive For Hill Climb

Lonaconing Workers Renew Contract

Members of the Lonaconing sub-local of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union (CIO), have approved a one-year extension of their contract with the General Textile Mills, according to Melvin Harris, Local 1874 president.

Many people in the area are expected to take the family to the hill climb event and make a holiday picnic outing of the occasion.

The firemen say there will be no charge for children under 12 years of age, and only a nominal charge will be made for each adult.

The hill climb has attracted a dozen of the nation's leading sports car drivers and about 50 other contestants.

The races will begin at 10 a.m. tomorrow and will run continuously until noon. A recess will be held for a chapel service and luncheon, with races resuming about 1:30 p.m. and continuing until 3:30 p.m.

Officials said some 500 Boy Scouts have already registered for summer camp during the five-week period, and that all indications point to the biggest camp in the council's history.

Tri-Towns Girl Scout troops will use the camp the following week.

The council was told that Camp Potomac will be used by the Cumberland Girl Scout Council June 19 through July 3.

Two days later, the Potomac Council camp staff will move in to prepare for Boy Scout camp sessions July 9 through August 14.

Section Is Lashed By Rain, Lightning

Traffic Is Snarled As Subways Flood

Some two inches of rain was dumped into Cumberland and immediate vicinity in two hours late yesterday evening as a fierce thunder and lightning storm poured down rain and hail lashed by high winds.

Cable television service was curtailed for about 45 minutes and electric power was interrupted in sections of the city as lightning struck.

An ornamental cupola pole atop the Baltimore and Ohio Bolt and Forge storehouse building was hit by a bolt of lightning which knocked a hole in the roof, causing a blaze.

The roof is approximately 50 feet high and the aerial ladder of Central Fire Station was used to get to the blaze. East Side responded and later called for the aerial ladder. The blaze occurred about the time the downpour of rain was at its worst.

Lightning hit at least two other places in Cumberland, both on Virginia Avenue.

Bolt Hits Home

Dr. G. Overton Himmelwright, 133 Virginia Avenue said considerable damage to the slate roof of his three-story brick home was caused by a bolt of lightning during the height of the storm.

He was in his office at the time and he said a flash came into the office. A number of patients were at his place but no one was injured. Electric power was not affected in the accident, he said.

A fresh accident occurred in the rear of 219 Virginia Avenue, where South End Cleaners is located, when a bolt of lightning sliced up a concrete block wall, which fell into the lot.

The wall was about five feet high and approximately 45 feet long. The lightning was reported to have sliced the wall "clean as a whistle," near the ground.

All three subways in the city were flooded by the heavy downpour and at most places in the city the water was running "curb to curb."

Crews of the Potomac Edison were working late last night as power was curtailed in sections of the city.

Stalls In Subway

At least one car stalled in one of the subways and local firemen who received a call, which apparently was a false alarm, were unable to get to Humboldt Street through the South End subway. A call for aid was sent to volunteer firemen at Wiley Ford and Ridgeley by local firemen.

Cable television service was interrupted for about 45 minutes as a result of the severe electrical storm.

The Potomac Valley Television Company said service was cut off when lightning knocked out a main amplifier off Williams Road.

The company said service was restored about 8:42 p.m., about 45 minutes after the bolt of lightning hit, adding that repair crews were delayed by traffic snarls and by limbs of trees blown into the road by high winds.

The city police desk sergeant was kept busy with calls coming in from all parts of the city. Some of the complaints included:

A car stalled on Hill Top Drive and Montgomery Avenue; a tree blowing down across the street at 314 Broadway, knocking out electric wires of that section; the three subways reported flooded; bad sewers in the 700 block of Maryland Avenue, and manhole lids off along Fayette Street.

Many cellars were flooded by the heavy rain which was dumped into the city.

Attempts will be made to get the Chicago Staff Band or the New York Staff Band to present the concert here the week of August 14.

The special concert is one of the activities planned by the Citadel to mark the 70th anniversary of the Salvation Army in Cumberland.

Capt. Daniel Biggs, commander, said records of the Citadel show that the Salvation Army came to Cumberland in August 1885, five years after it was established in the United States.

The committee will also assist the Fort Cumberland Bicentennial Committee in planning the part the Salvation Army will take in the celebration.
